Nylons and Education

WITHIN RECENT YEARS we have turned frequently to a casual consideration of the question of relativity. After we have read a page or two of the stuff, and have turned away to analyze what it is we have learned, invariably we find our mind a blank as to its exact theory.

Amateurishly speaking, we easily understand that relativity means a relationship of some kind, and we thus accept the understanding that Einstein went to some considerable pains to prove relationship between matter and space, superficially, appeared extremely remote.

Today there is a story on our front page which deals with the direct influence of nylons upon the attendance of a group of lady teachers upon an educational meeting in Statesboro. You can read that story at leisure, if you care to, or you may skip it. But as we contemplated that matter while it spread out before us on our typewriter, we were impressed with the fact that nylons have come to be much in demand—and that they are alleged to be mighty scarce and high in price. And as this word "high" which brought us to the point about which we are writing these lines, it was the matter of "high" priced nylons which threatened to prevent these ladies from attending a conference which had been scheduled for a study of "higher" education. And thus we recognized the relationship between nylons and education—the state of "highness" of both of them having made them akin. The ladies were about to miss the educational conference because of lack of nylons; missing the conference, their capability as teachers would have been affected detrimentally, you see, and thus a generation of today's youngsters were about to be left in comparative mental darkness. The cause of the lady teachers were about to miss the stockpiles.

If you get our point, you will agree with us that Einstein was somewhere near right if he sought to teach that even those matters which seem most remote, are in reality close akin.

Two Truthful Men

A GROUP OF MEN had assembled for the morning coffee, and all tongues were loosed, as it is inevitable when men are in good humor. The man who talked most—and there is always one who bears this distinction in any average crowd—spoke up when somebody mentioned the matter of veracity.

This man, past the sixty-year mark, and therefore presumed to have a wide circle of acquaintance, made the bold statement that within his entire circle of acquaintanceship he knew only two men whose word he would accept unqualifiedly under any circumstances. Naming these men—and the list did not include a single man in the group of listeners, which fact is entirely worthy of comment—it was recognized that both men were outstanding as public officials in the county, each having been repeatedly elected to important positions. There was not in the crowd a man who challenged the appraisal of these two men. Indeed it is easy the recognize that the voters of Bulloch county, by their repeated action, have borne testimony to the same estimate that this speaker was declaring—a high order of personal integrity and veracity.

Personally we have been sort of depressed by the realization that the speaker did not include us as one of the two men worthy to be believed. We wondered if he had suspected a carelessness on our part, or even of an actual departure from the line upon which he was giving praise.

We wondered, too, if he really knew as intimately about these two men as he might know about others if he had applied to them the same repeated tests. You know sweeping judgments cannot be based on casual knowledge. Sometimes a man's most intimate associates—even the members of his own family—know some little frailties about him which are unknown to the public. It is not always the words spoken which bear witness to veracity. The little daily actions are more expressive than uttered statements.

And this is not said to in any measure discount the appraisal applied to these two friends of ours.

Believe In Signs?

SORT OF GRADUALLY during recent months there has sprung up an increased demand for this family journal among persons who are not regular subscribers. Weekly sales on Thursday afternoon have come to be a substantial item. We hope that those who have learned of our publication hour make it a practice to call at the office for single copies.

At one of the hotels there is a "reader demand" among the negro females in the kitchen, and one girl comes regularly to buy for herself and associates. When she enters the press room while the noise of presses drowns out her voice (we want you to remember this word "drown") she simply holds up her fingers to indicate the number of copies she wants. Sometimes it is only one or two. But as we have heard her say, "I want three," and occasionally more. When we read the signs and know what she means, three fingers raised means three copies of the paper.

And now it seems that her sign language is not confined to the printing craft. Last Sunday morning there was reported on the streets of Statesboro that a car had overturned at a bridge on the road between Statesboro and Claxton and four persons were drowned. The story was brought by persons who passed the scene of the accident around midnight and saw the car in the river. We were interested to learn further facts about the accidental conference because of lack of nylons; missing the conference, their capability as teachers would have been affected detrimentally, you see, and thus a generation of today's youngsters were about to be left in comparative mental darkness. The cause of the lady teachers were about to miss the stockpiles.

Mrs. Howell Sewell has returned from Outhbert, where she spent several days with Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Coffin.

New Castle Club

The New Castle Club Tuesday afternoon at the club house with Mrs. Floyd Nevils as hostess. The business meeting was omitted so that we could hear Mrs. Lyon from Teachers College, who gave a very interesting talk. She also discussed with the group things that we as club members could do for our community. Mrs. Rushing, driver of the bus, was also present with plenty of good books to read. She left some at the club house and anyone who wishes to read any of them may contact Mrs. J. H. Strickland, who is library chairman.

Miss Spears gave an interesting demonstration on evening boots and buckles, and making belts.

During the social hour Mrs. Nevils served delicious refreshments.

INAUGURATE PLAN SAVE FARM STOCK

State-Wide Program Being Promoted "Clean-Up Week" Throughout Entire State

Plans for a nation-wide "farm clean-up week" from April 8 to 14, to help step up 1946 livestock production and farm profits, have been announced by state livestock health authorities.

Chief objective of the effort in this state will be a thorough clean-up of livestock quarters, barnyards, and lots, to eradicate parasites, germs and disease hazards which could be threat to livestock health. Clean-up suggestions, offered today by the American Foundation for Animal Health, include:

"Clean and disinfect livestock quarters, particularly where young animals and poultry are to be born and housed.

"Remove old straw stacks by spreading straw on fields. Old stacks harbor worms, parasites and disease germs.

"Clean up barnyards and livestock lots. They are often heavily infested with parasites.

"Drain low spots in barn lots where water stands; fence off these spots which cannot be drained. Wet places are germ-breeds.

"Haul out all manure; manure piles are sources of parasite infestation.

"Pick up nails, glass, and other sharp objects which could be swallowed by livestock with fatal consequences.

"Move young animals to fresh, clean ground as early as possible. As added health precautions, be sure pigs are vaccinated against erysipelas and cholera, have breeding stock forbrucellosis, and watch for signs of disease so prompt corrective measures may be taken."

This sale includes the entire property, fish pond and farm. Under present plans Mr. Bailey will continue to reside with Mr. and Mrs. Anderson.

Bulloch County Corn In Great Demand

Corn is $4 per bushel in Bulloch county, if it is good seed corn. At least, this is the price C. M. Cowart, one of the best corn farmers in Bulloch county, received for 178 bushels during this spring.

Mr. Cowart started several years ago with a combination corn and during the time continued to breed the corn up purely by selection. He now has a good, firm large-eared corn that is proving successful.

Mr. Cowart likes to sell corn at $4 per bushel, but he does not like the business of having to shell all this corn by hand. He says that is the method by which everyone wants it shelled.

BUREAU MEETING OF GREAT INTEREST

Many Outstanding Leaders Will Attend Conference Held in Macon April 4th

Macon, March 25.—"The meeting scheduled for Macon on Thursday, April 4, will be one of the most important ever held in Georgia," stated H. L. Wingate, president of the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation, in discussing the value of the session to the farmers of the state.

Coming to the state for this farm-industry conference, sponsored by the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation and the Associated Industries of Georgia, will be some of the nation's outstanding leaders in the field of agriculture, industry and business, Mr. Wingate said. In the field of agriculture will be Edwin A. O'Neal, of Chicago, president of the American Farm Bureau, whose address will be the highlight of the meeting from the farmers' standpoint. It is confidently expected that 1,500 to 2,000 members of the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation will avail themselves of this opportunity to hear the AFBF chief, and many business and industrial leaders will be attracted to Macon for this phase of the one-day program.

Robert R. Wason, of New York, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, is another national figure scheduled for a major address at the meeting. He is internationally known and is a man of wide influence and ability whose appearance in Macon will bring business and industrial leaders from every section of the state. He will be introduced by Norman Elsas, of Atlanta, member of the NAM board of directors.

Top-ranking officials of the U. S. Treasury Department will reveal for the first time in Georgia an official account of the recent monetary conference held in Savannah and its effect on agriculture throughout the world. Farmers, business and industrial leaders are looking forward with keen interest to the addresses of the treasury officials as well as others who are to appear on the program.

Walter S. Brown, director of Extension Service of the University of Georgia, will occupy a prominent part in the proceedings of the conference. During the past year Director Brown and members of his staff appeared at district farm-industry conferences throughout the state and the leadership of these agricultural experts was of much value to those comprising the district groups.

The Macon meeting is designed primarily to bring about a closer spirit of co-operation by various organizations in the state and to correlate the efforts and interests for the common good of all concerned. H. B. Yandke, AFBF director of public relations, announced. To accomplish these commendable objectives, some of the nation's most prominent leaders will take part in the April 4 program in Macon, he said.

Co-operating with the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation and the Associated Industries of Georgia in the forthcoming conference are the College of Agriculture of the University of Georgia, Georgia Bankers' Association and the Cotton Manufacturers Association of Georgia.

H. L. Wingate, president of the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation, and E. G. Hitt, of Atlanta, president of the Associated Industries of Georgia, will preside at the conference. Erle Cocco, chairman of the farm-industry committee of the AIG, will introduce the U. S. Treasury representative.

Presidents of the Farm Bureau organizations of the state adjoining Georgia, governors of many of the Southern States, congressmen and senators have been invited, many of whom will be in the Capital City for the conference. South Carolina Farm Bureau president, E. H. Agnew, will be accompanied to the meeting by a large delegation from his state.

The meeting will continue for approximately three hours, Yandel said, which will make it possible for Farm Bureau members from every section of the state to return to their respective homes the same day, it is confidently predicted by Farm Bureau officials, bankers and industrial leaders that a minimum of 3,000 people will fill the Macon Municipal Auditorium for the session.

"JES' HOL' IT NATCHEL, SONNY!"

"DISCOVERING" UNCLE NATCHEL

One day back in 1934, an artist, driving leisurely along a country road in the deep South, heard the sound of banjo music floating toward him through the trees. He left his car and followed the sad-sweet strains until he found a clearing in the forest where, on a little cabin porch, sat an old dorky, a red-headed boy of twelve, and a dog—in the middle of a music lesson! All unseen, the artist set up his easel and soon, upon the canvas, appeared the boy, all thumbs, his face screwed up in earnest effort, manfully struggling with the stringed instrument; the dog looking on in painful apprehension; the old man patiently urging: "Jes' hol' it natchel, Sonny—thataway, natchel!"

This beautiful painting by Hy Himmelfarb was featured on the 1935 Uncle Natchel calendar, and introduced to a million people the familiar figure of "Uncle Natchel," the kindly old man who has appeared ever since as the symbol of Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda.

Uncle Natchel is really a rare and lovable character. Grown old in the employ of Sonny's family, he is known to everyone for miles around for his inexhaustible supply of stories about the wonders of Nature and his belief that the best way to do anything is the "Natchel" way. And that, of course, is how he got his name.
